

U.S. Government

US Government's Role During the End Times

Our Government's Choice to be Defenseless Against Nukes: Did you know what the US would do if attacked by nuclear missiles? Pray! That's right. I'm all in favor of prayer, but that would be our only option. We are defenseless against an incoming attack by even one intercontinental ballistic missile today, and for the foreseeable future. Why? Because our politicians have sold us out.

The federal government's primary responsibility, of course, is to provide for the common defense of its citizens. It is not to mail out welfare checks. Nor is it not to confiscate our firearms. It's not even to educate our children. It's to protect us from external threats. Failure to do so is a betrayal of the Congressional oath. Current congressional attitudes and actions, or should I say inaction, on this issue border on criminal negligence at worst and outright stupidity at best.

It's been a long time since the US government had its priorities straight. So, one day, unless things change in Washington, we will be faced with the inevitable nuclear missile attack. Even if the attack is a single missile from a single rogue nation or fanatical group, we will have no defense, and hundreds of thousands of citizens could/will die a horrible death needlessly. Is this really a possibility?

Our intelligence agencies tell us it's a certainty. It's not a question of "if", it's a question of "when". (And this was written in 1997). Today we can see how real this threat really is.